CDM Opens New Texas Office to Optimize Support for Railroad Industry, DOD and DSCC Programs

New Plano Facility Expands CDM's Presence throughout the Midwest Great Plains Region

Turnersville, NJ, May 26, 2015...CDM Electronics, a premier authorized distributor of electronic connectors and cables, today announced the opening of a new Plano, Texas facility. The office now serves as CDM's Midwest and Great Plains regional operating hub from which specialized sales, engineering and design support are provided to current customers and the U.S. and Canadian railroad industry, as well as to DOD (Department of Defense) and Defense Supply Center Columbus (DSCC) contracts.

CDM's new facility is comprised of private offices, a fully staffed customer service department, conference center, and a section exclusively dedicated to railroad industry support. Outfitted with the latest generation of computers, communications, and audio video equipment, the space is designed to maximize productivity and enhance customer experience.

"Moving to larger state-of-the-art facilities in Texas underscores our commitment to provide local support and service to our existing customer base, along with the railroad industry, DOD and DCSS programs," stated Bill Almon, CDM Regional Sales Manager responsible for the Plano office. "By centralizing our expertise in these market segments, we can ensure that all customers in the Midwest and Great Plains regions receive the utmost efficiencies in product sourcing, reduced manufacturing lead-times and lower overall product development costs," he concluded.

CDM's comprehensive offering of interconnect solutions engineered to meet railroad industry, DOD and DCSS requirements include network cable assemblies, communication components, power supply cable assemblies, antennas and connectors. The company also manufactures interconnect products and cable assemblies for the commercial, telecom, medical, industrial and alternative energy sectors.
